FORMULA STUDENT 2013

Formula Student 2013 made competitive motorsport history when an electric vehicle won for the first time in the competition's history.

ETH Zurich, from Switzerland, stormed to victory with an extraordinary total of 921.3 points. It is believed to be the first time that an electric vehicle has beaten cars powered by combustion engines in any accredited motorsport competition.

What is Formula Student?

Formula Student challenges student engineers to design, build and race a single seat racing car in one year. The cars are then judged on their speed, acceleration, handling and endurance in a series of time-trial races, while the teams are tested on their design, costing and business presentation skills.

And the competition offers sponsors a fantastic opportunity to not only gain unparalleled access to some of the world's best young engineers, but also to enjoy widespread press coverage reaching millions of people across the UK.

In 2013 more than 2,000 students from 30 countries across the globe headed to Silverstone in July as Formula Student once again showed why it's the world's largest motorsport competition.

Ross Brawn, Team Principal of Mercedes AMG Petronas F1 Team, and James Allison, Chassis Technical Director of Scuderia Ferrari, were among the leading industry figures to head to the event and meet the students. Having Formula Student on the CV is now almost a pre-requisite for young engineers looking for a career in motorsport.

Media Coverage

Our press campaign runs throughout the year – and one of our Gold Sponsors showed exactly what media opportunities are afforded by Formula Student.

The Formula Diesel Eco Challenge, run in conjunction with Bosch Diesel Systems UK, saw teams from 46 UK universities tackle a non-stop driving challenge across the length of Britain in a bid to be crowned the nation's most economical drivers.

In total the competition generated 26 articles in 21 publications, including nationals, regionals and newswires, with a potential reach of more than 13 million readers.

Formula Student as a whole generated coverage across the whole media spectrum. It featured in ten news broadcasts, including BBC and ITV, and was covered by national news websites including the Daily Telegraph. Specialist magazines such as Racecar Engineering, Racetech and Motorsport Magazine ran articles through 2013, both pre and post event, and teams managed to generate 87 articles in regional newspapers across the UK.
